CHAPTER II.

LAND ADMINISTRATION.

For Revenue purposes the Chiefship is divided into two Parganas, each Pargana consisting of the following Tehsil :—

- | | |
|-----------------|---|
| Phulia Parganah | Kachhola Parganah |
| 1. Shahpura. | |
| 2. Phulia. | 1. Kachhola. 2. Ulela. 3. Redwas. |

Each Tehsil is under the charge of a Tehsildar who in Parganah Phulia is directly subordinate to the Musahib Revenue and in Parganah Kachhola to the Kamdar Kachhola as well as to the Revenue Musahib.

As Munshi Mahabir Prashad has been reverted to his substantive appointment in the Ajmer Commission on 31st December 1924, Kanwar Madan Singh who was guardian to Bhanwar Sundarshan Singhji took charge of the Revenue Department as Revenue Musahib and Assistant to Musahibala in Revenue work. He is also in charge of Survey and settlement work.

In Phulia Pargana the Survey was already completed and one village only remained to be formally assessed.

The Settlement work of Phulia perganas has been carried on, on the lines laid down by Sir Elliot Colvin, who advised caution in the assessment work, which work, he said, should be gradual after gaining experience in the already assessed villages. The work is very important and delicate as it is to be done in such a way that both the State and tenants may have no cause for complaint. The Revenue Musahib has now got to complete this assessment work and the compilation of the settlement papers and to frame a Revenue Manual for future guidance.

The assessments hitherto made have been accepted by the tenants, for, the principle is that if the cultivator gets his full crop the Raj too gets full rate, otherwise the Raj shares its revenue proportionately with the tenants. Moreover the rate will not be enhanced for twelve years. The rate no doubt will fluctuate between Minimum and Maximum standards, according to the sources of irrigation and the nature of the crop sown in the harvest.

The irrigated cotton in the Kharif and the irrigated Rabi (not sown in Kharif) pay three-fourth of the rate. All other crops irrigated in Kharif and if resown in Rabi pay the remaining half. Similarly unirrigated crops if manured pay half and unirrigated unmanured pay only one-fourth of the rate, moreover lands of all classes sown in the harvest which yield produce less than seed are not assessed, and if the produce is fodder only eight annas per Bigha is charged.

Thus it will be seen that the tenants have all possible advantages. A bad or famine year may otherwise badly affect the tenants, but there are all possible concessions for good and bad years in the system of the proposed assessment.

On the face of it no doubt the system seems somewhat laborious as well as intricate, but in practice it is very simple as the tenants say.

1. No produce (less than seed) no rate to pay.
2. If there is fodder, annas eight per Bigha, which is not a big sum.
3. Irrigated cotton in Kharif and Rabi crop pay three-fourths of the full rate.

4. If sown in both crops equal rate in each crop.

5. These rates are again divided according to the manured and unirrigated manured crops. The former paying half the rate and the latter one-fourth of the rate.

All these conditions have been printed in the pattas given to the cultivators showing full details of their lands and the rates of crop classification referred to above, and the concessions enjoyable by them in case of the failure of crops, so that it is now very easy for an ordinary village or a sensible cultivator to ascertain his revenue and cesses for the harvest.

It is not only in Khalsa portion that the above system has been given effect to, but it has been introduced in the villages owned by Rani Sahib and the Rajadhiraja.

The Native States have their own way of doing things by Lata and Kunta. To change the system all at once so as to suit both parties was not an easy task, and it was reserved for Munshi Mahabir Parshad to suggest a new system which had the approval of the Late Agent to the Governor General in Rajputana, Sir Elliot Colvin.

In fact this work has been so far done with great discretion and economy and the final figure of land Revenue for the entire Chifship is expected to give a decent increase.

In Kachhola Pergana all the villages of Redwas Tehsil and seven villages of Ulela Tehsil were surveyed during the year under report and all the settlement papers of Kachhola Tehsil were prepared. In this Pargana the system of assessment has been different from that of Phulia Parganah. It is fixed for twelve years but reasonable concessions have been allowed in case drought and famine years occur.

The total area cultivated during the year was 69617 Bighas or 42,260½ acres as against 66,007 Bhigas or 41,254 acres in the last year.
